Short author profile

Born in 1986, Rylan Hudson writes at the intersection of humanity, memory and the digital age. His novels combine sharp observation and philosophical depth with atmospheric tension.

Hudson creates literary worlds in which dystopian futures, mystery, inner conflict and the search for human connection meet. His work invites readers to question familiar certainties and look beyond the visible surface of a story.

Literary focus

- Dystopian and science-fiction literature
- Mystery thrillers and atmospheric suspense
- Philosophical fiction
- Humanity, memory and consequential choices
- Digital futures and social transformation

The central work axes

The Continuum

An expansive literary world about identity, knowledge, consequence and the limits of what people can know about their own reality.

Kurschatten / Spa Shadows

An atmospheric mystery thriller in which places, shadows and unspoken truths generate their own tension. International editions are available or scheduled for release.

Expanded literary media

Hudson connects books with cinematic watch pages, music, manga storytelling and editorial background features, creating an extended author experience across literature, image and sound.

Conversation topics for media

- Building literary worlds and complex characters
- Writing between mystery, dystopia and science fiction
- Humanity in the digital age
- Translating a page into a cinematic imagination
- International editions and multilingual readers
- Music, manga and visual storytelling as extensions of literature
